DRAFT LETTER FOR WHITE HOUSE SENIOR STAFF

Dear

Next Monday, February 5, from 6:00-8:00 the Capitol Hill Club will sponsor Kansas Night in honor of Bob Dole. The purpose is to provide a forum for all Republicans to thank Bob for his efforts as Chairman of the Republican National Committee, to give him a boost in Kansas, and to demonstrate Republican Party unity.

Earl Butz, Bryce Harlow, and I join as members of the Host Committee for this occasion in urging you to attend. We are hopeful that the President will attend, and a strong showing by senior Administration officials would be not only a tribute to Bob, but a welcome gesture to our Republican colleagues on the Hill. As there will be extensive coverage by local and national media, a heavy White House turnout is likely to be quite visible (the lack of such a turnout would be correspondingly visible). You should have received an invitation from the Capitol Hill Club, but if you have not, please let my secretary know.

Again, I urge you to attend if at all possible.

Voluntary Solution Is Asked

Page I By United Press International

President Nixon has threatened federal intervention unless television networks voluntarily agree to reduce program reruns.

In a letter to the Screen Actors Guild, released by the guild Thursday, Nixon said he had ordered a White House investigation of the network's rerun policies. He said that if the networks do not find "a voluntary solution" to the use of reruns at current levels, "we will explore whatever regulatory recommendations are in order."

The Screen Actors Guild in recent months has mounted a nationwide campaign to force a reduction of prime time reruns because, they charge, the repeated programs have forced film actors out of work.

The President's letter, addressed to the guild's president, actor John Gavin, and dated Sept. 12, stated in part:

"I can tell you now, that in general, I agree with your view that the increasing number of reruns on the networks in prime time constitutes an economic threat to the talented men and women of the American film industry.

"I am convinced that in cutting the amount of original programming the TV networks are failing to serve their own best interests as well as those of the public. No one will gain with this network practice which has the long run effect of drying up the domestic sources of new programming."

The letter to Gavin stated that "following our discussion on the growing tendency of the networks to use reruns in place of original programming. I asked Tom Whitehead, the director of the Office of Telecommunications Policy to look into this problem . . .

"Given the potential serious effect of this practice, I have instructed that Mr. Whitehead thoroughly investigate this

In a response, Gavin wrote: "Your endorsement and support of the goals with which we seek to better the welfare and work opportunities of the people in the entertainment field is most deeply appreciated . . ."

In New York, the president of the NBC television network, Don Durgin, said the network believed a limitation on reruns would be prohibitively expensive and would serve to throw more actors out of a job.

Durgin, reiterating an argument advanced by the President of CBS Television "As we have told the FCC, the most feasible, immediate way to increase employment in the motion picture industry would be through repeal of its prime time access rule, which reduced the network's program production by 12 hours a week and eliminated new production estimated at $60 million annually."

WASHINGTON-The Nixon administration, expressing concern over a faltering television-program-production industry, suggested it will try to discourage the trend toward using more TV reruns at night.

Clay T. Whitehead, who speaks for the White House on communications policy matters, said President Nixon has written the Screen Actors Guild "expressing general agreement that the increasing number of reruns constitutes an economic threat to the program-production industry."

Mr. Whitehead, director of the White House Telecommunications Policy Office, said the President had asked his office to look into the matter and recommend appropriate action. He added that the telecommunications policy of-fice would make its recommendations either to the Federal Communications Commission, or to the television networks.

The White House official made his comments in San Francisco to the local chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences; the text of the speech was made available here.

Mr. Whitehead didn't specify how his office would tackle the rerun problem. However, he asserted that the program-production industry is "drastically" under-used and argued that it isn't in the public interest for this industry to be "sapped of its vitality."

Earlier in his speech, Mr. Whitehead asserted that the federal government tries to avoid regulation of broadcast programming content, keeping its attention focused on technical and operational matters. But he added that 'something must be done about the realities of television.

Currently, the FCC is considering a pro- industry.

posal that would limit television reruns at night to 13 weeks a year. The proposal was flied by a group called Stop Excessive Reruns and Save Television Original Programming. The group consists of various trade associations, unions and professionals in Hollywood.

In Los Angeles Tuesday, Robert D. Wood, president of Columbia Broadcasting System Inc.'s network division, said the prosposal was "unrealistic" and argued that the cost to television networks would be prohibitive.

In a statement issued yesterday, Mr. Wood referred to his Los Angeles speech, but added: "We welcome any thoughtful consideration of the question of network reruns."

Don Durgin, president of RCA Corp.'s NBC television network, said that "since the cost of television-program production is at an all-time high and repeat programming is an economic necessity, a (rerun) limitation would result in less-elaborate production and consequently less employment,"

A spokesman for American Broadcasting Cos. said: "It is likely that any federal or state intervention to compel fewer film reruns would well result in networks turning to different and less-expensive forms of programming with dis-astrous results to the entire film industry."

One industry source said he viewed Mr. One industry source said he viewed Mr. Whitehead's remarks and the Nixon letter as a campaign ploy designed to gather support from the Hollywood unions whose members are employed in the production of television programming. The proposal that would limit the amount of program time that could be devoted to reruns is believed to have originated with the various Hollywood unions, which are concerned over widespread unemployment in the

Nixon administration has placed itself firmly behind an actors' union effort to force network television to reduce the number of reruns in prime time

And a White House communications adviser has suggested that a fourth national commercial TV network "may be the only way to meet the needs" of program diversity and audi-ence choice."

Clay T. Whitehead, director of the President's office of telecommunications policy, told the San Francisco chapter of the National Academy of Tele-vision Arts and Sciences last night that viewers "will be up in arms when they realize the extent to which the networks are programming reruns."

Put at 45 Percent

The networks estimate they now devote about 45 percent of prime time - 8 to 11 p.m. in any given year to prime time, most of it in the summer. Hollywood guilds and unions have petitioned the Federal Communications Commission to order the networks to limit reviews to an arrow the networks to sion to order the networks to limit reruns to no more than 25 percent of the choice time. The unions, with the backing of Gov. Ronald Reagan and two California Republican congressmen, Barry Goldwater Jr. and Alphonzo Bell, contend that reruns on the networks have resulted in less new programming and a subsequent loss of jobs in the television and film industries. Whitehead said a study by the unions claims the nationwide average of network prime-time reruns of network prime-time reruns is close to 60 percent. "From what I've seen already, this will be a good profit year in the TV industry," Whitehead said. "I've also heard that the Hollywood studios are on the ropes — that at any one time there are many craft unions with 50 to 75 percent of their members out of work."

Looking at Problem

"We are going to look at the rerun problem carefully and make our recommendations to the FCC if necessary, or urge the networks to take whatever action is deemed appropriaction is deemed appropriate."

Nixon, in a letter yesterday to John Gavin, president of the Screen Actors Guild, said, "Given the potential serious effect of this practice, I have instructed Mr. Whitehead to thoroughly investigate this problem. I am hopeful Mr. Whitehead, working with the networks, will find a voluntary solution. Otherwise we will explore whatever regulatory recommendations are in order."

As for creating a new network, Whitehead conceded that in the past, problems in "starting up additional networks have been insurmountable" but he said "times are changing".

works have been insurmounta-ble" but he said "times are changing."

"First, the 'open skies' poli-cy for domestic satellites could substantially lower the cost of national and regional network interconnections," he

"Second," he said, "the criti-cal mass problem of collecting enough major market affili-ates could be eased by cable TV development. The new net-works do not have to look like the present networks or operate in the same way."

Reruns: Nixon Takes a Look

By John Carmody

President Nixon, responding to complaints from the Screen Actors Guild and Hollywood television unions that the increase in TV reruns during prime time has meant a sharp decrease in work for their members, has ordered his Office of Telecommunications Policy to look into the situation.

look into the situation.

Dr. Clay T. Whitehead,
OTP director, suggested that the administration would "urge the networks to take whatever action is deemed appropriate" after an investigation but said
Federal Communications Commission action was a possibility, too.

The FCC has already indicated that it will look into the controversial prime-time access rule — which currently bans network-produced shows between 7:30 and 8 p.m. — another factor blamed for the serious cutback in Hollywood film production.

Whitehead made the announcement yesterday before the San Francisco chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

He cited Hollywood union figures indicating that the "general nationwide average of reruns in network prime time is close to 60 per cent." He said that currently "the networks are working with a 44-week schedule, which contemplates 20 or 22 weeks of reruns."

Clting "the good profit year in the TV industry," Whitehead said that "the Hollywood studios are on the ropes—at any one time there are many craft unions with 50 to 75 per cent of their members out of work."

He called the "skilled and creative people in the film industry . . . a great national resource." Whitehead did not need to add that they also comprise thousands of votes in a critical state during a presidential election year,

On Tuesday, Robert D. Wood, president of CBS, defended the networks' policy of reruns on grounds that it gives viewers a chance to see programs they missed the first time around. He was commenting on proposals presently before the FCC to limit the number of reruns to 25 per cent of prime time during a year.

Responding to the Whitehead speech yesterday, Don Durgin, president of the NBC TV network, said in a statement that "it is our belief that a limitation on repeat programming would be self-defeating and will not ultimately serve the interest of the audience."

He said, "As we have told the FCC, the most feasible, immediate way to increase employment in the motion picture industry would be to repeal the prime-time access rule, which reduced the networks' program production by12 hours a week and eliminated new production estimated at $50 million annually."

An OTP sopkesman here said yesterday that "there isn't anything concrete" planned yet by the agency to implement the rerun investigation. "We would like to start a dialogue, however," he said.

Whitehead, in his speech, admitted the problem was complicated. "It's irresponsible to criticize the entertainment programs the viewer sees on his screen," he said, "and blame evil-intentioned network executives for not doing better." But, he pointed out, the FCC has to devote "some attention, at least indirectly, to the programming seen by the viewers."

He said the problems of prime-time access and reruns were "part of the need for more program diversity... for the viewers." He suggested that the solution might be the creation of new networks, either national, regional or for specialized programming, whose initial costs could be eased by use of cable and domestic satellites.

President Supports Coast Unions' Fight Against TV Reruns

President Nixon yesterday placed his Administration firmly behind the efforts of Hollywood unions to force the three television networks to cut back on the number of reruns programed in prime evening time.

The President made his views known in a letter to the Screen Actors Guild, in which he suggested that unless the networks voluntarily reduced the amount of prime time devoted to reruns, "we will explore whatever regulatory recommendations are in order."

The text of the letter was released to coincide with a speech delivered in San Francisco by Mr. Nixon's director of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy, Clay T. Whitehead. In the speech, Mr. Whitehead referred to "the spreading blight of reruns."

Uniform Rejoinder

Spokesmen for the American Broadcasting Company, the Columbia Broadcasting System, and the National Broadcasting Company made the uniform rejoinder that the chief reason the networks program reruns is the spiraling cost of film production in West Coast studios.

Mr. Nixon's letter was addressed to John Gavin, presidents of the Coast Studios.

Mr. Nixon's letter was addressed to John Gavin, president of the Screen Actors Guild. Along with most other guilds and unions in Hollywood, it has petitioned the Federal Communications Commission to order the networks to limit reruns to

Gentlemen:

Enclosed is Mr. Clay T. Whitehead's check for $10.00 for Kansas Night on February 5th honoring Senator Bob Dole.

Honorable H. R. Haldeman Assistant to the President The White House Washington, D. C. 20500

Dear Bob:

As Chairman of the Program Committee for the Capitol Hill Club's Kansas Night in honor of Bob Dole, I would like to enlist your help in our effort to get the President to attend. It is an outstanding opportunity to show publicly our appreciation to Bob, to make a friendly gesture to Republicans on the Hill, and to foster party unity. We are working to get good attendance from both the Hill and the Administration. There will be heavy press coverage by local, national, and Kansas media.

If it will not be possible for the President to attend, we would like to invite you to say a few words about Bob either personally or on the President's behalf. Bill Timmons and Bryce Harlow both tell me you hope to make more public appearances this term. This occasion seems to be a particularly good place to start, and we can work out almost any arrangement that would be best for you.

If you have any questions, Bryce, Bill, or I would be happy to help.

Sincerely,

Clay T. Whitehead
