NIXON PRESIDENTIAL MATERIALS STAFF
NATIONAL ARCHIVES AND RECORDS ADMINISTRATION

Harry (H. R.) Haldeman served as President Richard Nixon's Chief administrative officer and chief of staff from January 21, 1969 through May 19, 1973. Haldeman's official title was assistant to the President.

These diaries were donated by Harry R. Haldeman to the National Archives in 1980. They consist of seven handwritten diaries or journals, thirty-six dictated diaries recorded on audio cassettes, and two handwritten tape logs. The diaries reflect Mr. Haldeman's often candid personal record and reflections on events, issues and other people during his service in the Nixon White House.

These materials have been archivally processed in accordance with H. R. Haldeman's deed of gift to the National Archives and NARA guidelines and regulations. Items that are security classified or otherwise restricted have been withheld from release at this time. A Document Withdrawal Record (GSA Form 7279) with a description of each restricted document has been inserted at the beginning of the handwritten diary from which materials have been removed, and an annotation indicates the original position of withdrawn portion. Withdrawals from the taped diaries are indicated by a tone which lasts as long as the withdrawn segments. For information about the specific reason that a segment has been withdrawn from the tapes, please contact the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff.

Employees of the National Archives will review periodically the unclassified portions of closed materials for the purpose of opening those which no longer require restriction. Classified documents may be reviewed for declassification under authority of Executive Order 12356 in response to a Mandatory Review Request (GSA Form 7277) submitted by the researcher.

FG 103

(Corporation for Public Broadcasting)

These Presidential historical materials are in the custody of the National Archives and Records Administration under the provisions of Title I of the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act of 1974 (44 U.S.S. 211 note), and implementing regulations. In accordance with the act and regulations, archivists reviewed the file group to identify private or personal as well as non-historical items. Such items, if found, have been withdrawn for return to the individual with primary proprietary or commemorative interest in them.

Materials covered by this act have been archivally processed and are described in this finding aid. Items that are security classified or otherwise restricted under the act and regulations have been removed and placed in a closed file. A Document Withdrawal Record (NA Form 1421) has been placed in the front of each folder describing each withdrawn item. Employees of the National Archives will review periodically the unclassified portions of closed materials for the purpose of opening those which no longer require restrictions. Classified documents may be reviewed for declassification under authority of Executive Order 12356 in response to Mandatory Review Request (NA Form 14020) submitted by the researcher.

Linear measurement of materials: 8 in.

Approximate number of pages: 1280.

Scope and Content Note

This subject category contains material relating to FG 103, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB). The CPB was established, pursuant to the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, as a non-profit, non-government corporation to promote and help finance the development of non-commercial radio and television. The CPB, funded by the Federal Government and private resources, was to provide a national interconnection of stations and generate quality programming from many sources. Rather than produce programs, the CPB was to provide grants for production centers. The CPB's Board of Directors were to be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The records consist of correspondence, memorandums, reports, news clippings, speeches, and press releases. Primary correspondents include the President, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Peter Flanigan, Clay T. Whitehead, Ken Cole, Herbert Klein, John W. Macy, Frank Pace, and James R. Killian. Topics include authorization and funding of the CPB, satellite technology, the administration's position on the CPB, public affairs broadcasting, and appointments to and resignations from the CPB. Oversize attachments 4839, 5707, 5167, and 136561 have been processed and integrated into the collection.

Scope and Content Note

This subject category contains material relating to FG 102, Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT). The Communications Act of 1962 (Public Law 87-624) established COMSAT as a stockholder owned for profit corporation rather than as an agency or establishment of the U.S. Government. COMSAT was to plan, initiate, construct, manage, and operate itself or in conjunction with foreign governments or business entities a commercial satellite system. As part of this system, COMSAT was required to furnish, for hire, channels of communication to U.S. communications common carriers and to other authorized entities foreign and domestic.

The records consist of correspondence, memorandums, reports, and press releases. Primary correspondents include the President, John D. Ehrlichman, Peter Flanigan, Clay T. Whitehead, Joseph V. Charyk, Joseph H. McConnell, and James McCormack. Topics include COMSAT contracts, COMSAT's relationship with the Federal Communications Commission, communications with the White House, domestic satellite communications program, shareholder information, construction of a satellite earth station in Alaska, COMSAT's relationship with the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization (INTELSAT), and appointments to and resignations from COMSAT. The Archives

The Archives of the Nixon Library is a privately funded and operated research area. Its core collection, the late President's private pre-presidential papers (1913-1968) and his post-presidential papers (1974-1994), consists of approximately 2,900 linear feet of manuscripts, 3,000 books, 19,000 photographs, and 200 films. Documents are arranged in appearance, campaign, correspondence, trip, and work files with runs of research folders on the issues of the day. To enhance this massive paper record maintained by Richard Nixon, former associates of the President as well as private citizens have given and continue to contribute their private collections to the library. A fact sheet on the archives is available below.

Only cataloged and/or numbered items in the Richard Nixon Library's Archives are accessible to scholars; so cataloging activity is intense. The results of it are recorded in a traditional card catalog system with name, date, and subject indexes.

The Archives staff welcomes general reference calls about Richard Nixon and handles orders for reproducing of images in its photographic collection. To help young students writing reports about former President Nixon, it provides, free of charge, a packet of information on the 37th President of the United States. Archives Fact Sheet

Opened: March, 1994

Size:

Approximately 2,900 linear feet of manuscripts; 19,000 still photographs; 150 original reels of film, 900 audio recordings of RN speeches (1950-1968); 3,000 books; and assorted collections of original political cartoons, campaign posters, and political ephemera.

Core Collection:

Richard Nixon's private pre-Presidential papers (campaign files, 1946-1968; Congressional and Senatorial files, 1947-1952; foreign correspondence files, 1947-1968; special correspondence files with, e.g., John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, Martin Luther King, and J. Edgar Hoover; correspondence, trip, and appearance files for 1963-1968; and two major runs of research subject files: 1960 and 1968).

Richard Nixon's post Presidential papers, August, 1974-April, 1994.

Acquired Collections:

H.R. Haldeman Collection of papers relating to his association with RN (excepting Presidential years); Herman L. Perry Collection of correspondence (1947-1954) between RN and Perry, the Whittier banker who initiated RN's political career; Dana Smith Collection of papers dealing with the Fund/Checker's Speech (1952), and many others. This category is continually growing despite the fact that most principals in the Nixon Administration understandably gave their papers to other institutions during the sixteen year hiatus between RN's resignation and the building of his library.

Access to Collections:

The Archives at the Nixon Library is privately run and, thus, operated in a manner consistent with that of major private libraries in the United States: Application must be made to use the materials; and due to the small size of the staff, appointments are required for research visits. In the previous year (1997) over 16,000 manuscripts and 3,500 books, photographs, and ephemera were read by visiting scholars and researchers and over 1,000 reference calls were received and answered.

Processing the Collections:

Although summary reports and inventories exist for all parts of the Nixon Library's manuscript holdings, a program for item-by-item cataloging of the central parts of the collection is underway with the companion project of meeting conservation needs as they arise. Cataloging information is entered in the archive's central card catalog, which has Name, Subject, and Chronological listings.

FOREWORD

The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff is the custodian of the materials created during the Presidency of Richard M. Nixon, 1969-1974. The staff is one of eleven Presidential Libraries and projects administered by the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). Although President Nixon was in office for only five years, his papers comprise the second largest collection of any Presidential Library. The Nixon Presidential materials consist of approximately 44 million pages, of which about 7 million are available for public research. There are also 30,000 gifts, approximately 500,000 photographs, 700 hours of film, over 4,000 hours of "off the air" video recordings, and 4,469 audio recordings, all available for research. In addition, the Nixon Project, as we are commonly known, also has 950 Nixon White House tapes.

The Nixon Presidential materials are processed and released for public research in accordance with the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act of 1974 (PRMPA) and its implementing public access regulations (36 CFR 1275). The law, which applies only to Nixon Presidential materials, stipulates that those materials relevant to the understanding of Abuse of Governmental Power and Watergate are to be processed and released to the public as quickly as possible. The law also states that NARA must segregate and return to the estate of former President Nixon those materials considered to be private political or private personal. Therefore, the publicly available materials relate to Abuses of Governmental Power and to the constitutional and statutory duties of the President and his White House staff.

In the course of processing, the Nixon Project has released to the public approximately 2,280 cubic feet of materials. This includes the White House Special Files (WHSF) -- the most heavily researched materials in our custody -- Staff Member and Office Files (SMOF), and White House Central Files (WHCF) Subject File categories. The Nixon Project staff is now in the midst of completing processing of our White House Central Files and has an ambitious program to process the remaining Staff Member and Office Files. In addition, the Project also processes Alpha Name Files and other collections in response to researcher demands. Keep in mind, though, that once a collection is archivally processed, it doesn't necessarily mean that a collection can be immediately opened. The public access regulations under which we operate require us to publish a Federal Register notice that allows for a thirty-day comment period during which time Nixon White House staff members and the Nixon estate can contest materials that we propose to release. If you are interested in learning more about the process by which Nixon Presidential materials are processed and publicly released, please request a booklet entitled "Regulations for the Public Use of Records in the National Archives," GIL 2. Access regulations pertaining to Nixon Presidential materials are found on pages 53-62 in this booklet.

In addition to our large volume of textual materials available for public research, the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff also has processed and released, in accordance with PRMPA and its public access regulations and the April 12, 1996, Tapes Settlement Agreement, 265 hours of Abuse of Governmental Power and Watergate conversations. Please refer to Page 41 in this Availability List for a complete listing of released Nixon White House tape recordings. The Tapes Settlement Agreement of 1996 gives an estimated time table for the processing and release of the remaining Nixon White House tapes over a four-year period. The first release under the agreement, consisting of 201 hours of Abuse of Governmental Power conversations, occurred on November 18, 1996. The Agreement also calls for five additional incremental releases of the remaining Nixon White House tapes. For further information concerning the Agreement and estimated release dates, please request a copy of the Tapes Settlement Agreement of 1996 from the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff.

To answer the most frequently asked questions concerning the availability of our holdings, we have prepared the following question and answer section. Since all questions cannot be answered in this Q and A section, we would be pleased to address any additional questions you may have concerning our holdings and how to gain access to them. As head of the Nixon Project, I want to ensure you that our goal will be to provide you ready access to our publicly available materials in a prompt and professional manner.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

The following is a list of questions which the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff has received from our researchers. Answers have been provided here for your convenience, though the Staff is always prepared to answer any further questions that our researchers may pose.

Who may use NARA's holdings?

Anyone over the age of sixteen can use NARA's holdings. Individuals under the age of sixteen must submit a letter of recommendation from either their teacher or principal which states the nature of their research prior to beginning their work. In addition, they must be accompanied by either a parent or other responsible adult during their use of the holdings.

How do I plan for research at the library?

Write or call the library to ask if we have material on your topic. This guide is also available on the Internet at <http://gopher.nara.gov:70/1/inform/library/nixon>. We will consult our finding aids and give you an assessment of the quantity and quality of material on your topic. This guide provides basic information about our collections which are available to the public for research. More detailed descriptions of the collections are available in the research room and by mail. We can also provide information about local accommodations and travel directions.

Once you arrive at the National Archives at College Park, you will be directed at the guard's desk to the Consultants' Office in room 1000 where you will be issued a researcher's card and be informed of general procedures for research (see also "Regulations for the Public Use of Records in the National Archives and Records Administration" [36 CFR 1275]). Next, an archivist will meet with you to explain the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act (PRMPA) regulations and procedures for use of the Nixon Presidential materials.

What is the best way to begin my research?

We advise all researchers to begin their research with published sources in order to be familiar with their topic. Since we are an archives, our holdings are maintained in their original order and are not organized by subject, which is the case with library holdings of books. The researcher should know important dates and names of White House staff members that would have been involved with their topic. This information is necessary because many of our collections are White House Staff Member and Office Files.

Can I do research by mail?

Though we are not staffed to do substantive research, you can receive a copy of this Availability List and borrow collection finding aids by mail for all processed collections. You may borrow up to six (6) finding aids for two weeks at a time by writing to the Staff. If a personal visit is not possible, you may wish to hire a research assistant. Students at the University of Maryland are available as research assistants. Please contact the University of Maryland, Department of History at 2115 Francis Scott Key, College Park, MD 20742 or send a fax to 301-314-9399 with pertinent information.

Where will I find the most documents that President Nixon annotated or wrote?

President Nixon frequently annotated the News Summaries prepared for him with instructions to the staff and also his impressions of the news events. Much of his original handwriting is in the President's Handwriting File. Both of these series can be found in the White House Special Files: Staff Members and Office Files; President's Office Files.

Can I order copies of audiovisual materials from the Nixon White House?

As part of an agency-wide reappraisal of the National Archives' mission and goals, the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff has embarked on a pilot program to privatize the providing of reference reproductions of audiovisual materials from its collections (still photographs, motion film, sound recordings, and videotape). The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff will no longer collect monies, create invoices, track orders, or provide reproductions created "in-house"; these activities can be handled more quickly and efficiently by the private sector. Please call or write the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff to ask for detailed instructions for ordering reproductions of audiovisual materials.

Do you have the letter from Elvis Presley to President Nixon and that picture of President Nixon shaking hands with Elvis Presley?

Yes, the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff has the letter and twenty-eight black and white photographs of Elvis Presley meeting President Nixon taken by White House Chief Photographer Oliver F. Atkins. Call or write the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff and ask for detailed instructions on how to order the "Elvis pictures" or the "Elvis letter."

Are the Nixon White House tapes available?

Please see Page 41 of this guide for a description of the tapes currently available. The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff is currently processing the remaining Nixon White House tapes in accordance with the provisions of the April 12, 1996 Tapes Settlement Agreement. The text of the agreement is available from the Federal Register Online via GPO Access [wais.access.gpo.gov] or by request.

How can I get copies or transcripts of the White House tapes?

Currently, our operating regulations (36 CFR 1275) prohibit the copying of the Nixon White House tapes. The tapes are available for public listening in Room 4000 of the National Archives at College Park, MD, from 8:45 am to 4:30 pm, Monday through Friday, except Federal holidays.

The National Archives and Records Administration does not transcribe taped conversations unless directed to by Court order or in response to special access requests. Currently, we have transcripts for three conversations discussing Prisoners of War/Missing in Action and portions of conversations regarding automobile safety, demonstrations, and Wounded Knee. Additionally, the Watergate Special Prosecution Force produced transcripts of the tapes which were subpoenaed during the Watergate investigation. These transcripts are available at 50¢ per page. Please call or write the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff for an order form.

How shall I cite material found at the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff?

Type of document; names of sender and recipient, or title of document; date; folder title or White House Central File Code; box number; collection title; Richard M. Nixon Presidential Materials Staff, National Archives at College Park, MD.

Examples:

Memo; John Dean to President Nixon; 15 July 1972; folder Memoranda to the President, July 1972; White House Special Files; Staff Member and Office Files: John Dean; Box 63; Richard M. Nixon Presidential Materials Staff at College Park, MD.

Letter; President's meeting with Ambassador Smith; 22 March 1972; folder FO 3-1 Executive; White House Central Files; Richard M. Nixon Presidential Materials Staff at College Park, MD.

Can I request declassification of security classified material?

Researchers may request the mandatory review of security classified materials. Generally, the items must be individually identified by the requester and locatable by an archivist. In the records, the document withdrawal citations ("pinksheets") will give the requester enough information to initiate a mandatory review. The National Archives and Records Administration acts as the facilitator of the review process; the declassification is done by the originating agencies or agencies with an interest in each document. Instructions for the Mandatory Review process can be found on Page 33 of this guide.

Can I order document reproductions by mail?

Document reproductions can be ordered at the current standard fee set by the National Archives. However, citations must be specific. Our staff cannot select documents for you.

How does copyright law affect research?

The copyright law of the United States, Title 17 USC, governs the making of electrostatic copies, photographic prints, and audio and video tape recordings of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives may furnish reproductions. One specified condition is that the reproduction of copyrighted material is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses a reproduction for, purposes beyond those of "fair use", that user may be liable for copyright infringement. This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a reproduction order if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of copyright law.

The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff, and the National Archives, do not have legal authority to rule on questions of copyright. The Library of Congress' Copyright Office will, for a fee, undertake to research the copyright status of audiovisual materials made available from the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff and the National Archives.

Does NARA have reference material?

Researchers are welcome to use the Research Library located on the third floor of the Research Complex at Archives II.

See the October 17, 1996, press release regarding the opening of these contested materials.

National Security Council (NSC) Files
(61 cubic feet)

The National Security Council (NSC) was established by the National Security Act of July, 1947 (PL 235-61 Stat. 496; U.S.C. 402). It was created by President Harry S Truman in order to advise and assist the President on national security and foreign policies and to coordinate these policies among various government agencies. This legislation also provided for the creation of the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Resources Board, a National Military Establishment, and a Secretary of Defense.

The structure and function of the NSC changed with each administration. The needs and desires of the President and his relationships with his advisors and department heads all had an affect on the role of the NSC in policy and decision making. Unlike his predecessors, President Nixon relied heavily on both his National Security Advisor, Henry A. Kissinger, and the NSC for guidance on foreign policy decisions throughout the administration.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: JOHN C. SAWHILL
ADMINISTRATOR-DESIGNATE

SUBJECT: INFORMATION MEMORANDUM - Proposed FEO
Rule Disallowing the Pass Through of Inflated Foreign Crude Oil Costs

This memorandum is intended to give you the key facts regarding FEO's May 16, 1974, Notice of proposed Rulemaking, and to clarify its relationship to pending legislation which would roll back domestic crude oil prices. The proposed rule would disallow costs of crude oil imports purchased by major United States oil companies from their foreign affiliates to the extent that those "transfer prices" exceed the market prices in comparable arms-length transactions between unaffiliated companies. The principal features of the proposed rule are:

- It applies only to imported crude oil, and would have no direct impact upon the price of domestic crude.
- It employs a market price standard - by disallowing only those costs in excess

1. WHCF Subject File codes always appear in the upper right corner.
2. The top code [TA 4/29] indicates the location of the entire document case, perhaps several pages with attachments
3. Each other code [BE 5-2, CM 29, etc.] is the file location of a cross-reference.
4. Each handwritten name [Jackson] is the file location of a cross-reference in the Alpha Name File.
5. A cross-reference consists of only the top page of a document. If a code or name is underlined, you are reading a cross-reference.
6. An additional marking like "Oversize Attachment #5037" means that a bulky item, perhaps a publication or ring-binder, was assigned a control number and detached for separate storage.

Mandatory Declassification Review Requests

The Mandatory Review (MR) for declassification provisions of Executive Order 12958 enable a researcher to request agencies of the Federal Government to review for declassification documents that were classified for national security reasons. A Document Withdrawal Record (NA Form 1421) at the front of a file folder indicates that a document has been withdrawn from the file by the National Archives and Records Administration.

If the Document Withdrawal Record shows that the reason for withdrawal is restriction code "B" (national security or foreign government information), the researcher may request a mandatory declassification review of the item. Researchers should note that the MR process applies only to restriction code "B" material. For a request to re-review items withdrawn under any other restriction codes, consult the Acting Director of the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff.

Procedures for initiating an MR request:

1. Complete Sections I, II, and III of the Presidential Libraries Mandatory Review Request Form (NA Form 14020) [See Page 36]
2. For each document requested provide the following information:
 - date of document
 - subject or title of document or name of correspondents
 - type of document (e.g., memo, letter, report, talking paper, etc.)
 - number of pages of document

If a specific piece of requested information is not contained on the Document Withdrawal Record, please leave the appropriate block blank in Section III of the Presidential Libraries MR Request Form. It is important to include the file location of the document desired, including the name of the file group, container number, and the title of the folder. This information is also available at the bottom of the Document Withdrawal Record.

The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff recommends that each MR requester establish a priority list so that the documents considered most essential to one's research will be processed first. Unless otherwise instructed by the requester, the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff will divide requests into manageable blocks with no set priority and submit first those documents that appear most likely to receive positive action from the reviewing agencies.

After the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff receives an MR request, it will be handled in one of the following ways:

1. If the document was created by a Federal agency
 - a. The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff will submit copies of the document to the originating agency that has declassification authority and sometimes to other agencies having an interest in the document.

- b. The appropriate agency will review the document and advise the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff of its decision. Sometimes agencies will refer documents to other agencies for concurrences. This review by the originating agency and other agencies may take considerable time.
- c. After all responses from appropriate agencies have been received, the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff will notify the requester about the declassification decision and the reproduction costs for each item declassified. Items will be released in accordance with the regulations governing access to Nixon Presidential materials (36 CFR 1275).
- d. If an agency denies the request for declassification, the researcher may appeal this decision directly to the agency's appellate authority. The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff will inform the requester about this procedure in its notification letter to the requester.

2. If the document was created by the White House

- a. The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff will submit copies of the document to those agencies with primary subject matter interest for advice concerning declassification. Researchers must be aware that this review by an agency or agencies may take considerable time.
- b. The authority for declassification decisions pertaining to White House-classified materials is the Director of the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff. The decision either to declassify or deny declassification will be based upon the recommendations from the appropriate agencies.
- c. Items declassified in full or in part will be released according to the regulations governing access to Nixon Presidential materials (36 CFR 1275). The Nixon Presidential Materials Staff will notify the researcher about the final decision with regard to the MR request and about reproduction costs for items declassified. Upon receipt of payment, copies of the declassified or sanitized documents will be sent to the researcher.
- d. If the MR request is denied, the requester may appeal the decision to the Deputy Archivist of the United States through the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff.

3. Limitations on Mandatory Review rights

- a. Documents that have been reviewed by the agency with declassification authority and not declassified will not be resubmitted in less than two years from the date of the agency's final determination.
- b. In order to be fair to all researchers, MR requests will normally be processed in blocks of approximately 35 documents (100 pages). The first 35-document block will be submitted to the appropriate agencies within 30 days after receipt of the MR request. Each request will be processed in the order of receipt. After the initial 35-document block of each new request has been submitted, the Nixon Presidential Materials Staff will repeat the process on the second block of the request and continue until all pending requests are processed.

The initial 35-document block in a newly-submitted MR request will take precedence over second, third, or fourth blocks of previous MR requests.

WHITE HOUSE TAPES

Four hundred twenty (420) hours of the Nixon White House tapes are available for public listening. The public may listen to the tapes in the Audiovisual Research Room of the National Archives at College Park. These tapes may not be duplicated.

Watergate Trial Tapes

The 12½ hours of Nixon White House tapes introduced as evidence in the Watergate trials were opened to the public for listening in 1980. There are transcripts of these conversations available to the public.

Watergate Special Prosecution Force (WSPF)

The 60 hours of Nixon White House tapes, opened for research use in 1991, consist of the conversations obtained by the WSPF for use in its investigations. In addition to the 12½ hours of trial tapes, this group includes 47½ hours of conversations relating to Watergate which the Special Prosecutor did not use as evidence in open court. There are transcripts for 85 of the 88 conversations in this group. All of these transcripts were produced by officials involved in the investigation of Watergate matters and are located among the Records of the Watergate Special Prosecution Force (Record Group 460) in the National Archives. A detailed finding aid is available for this group of tapes.

Abuse of Governmental Power (AOGP) Segments -(February 20, 1971-July 12, 1973)

This group consists of segments of White House taped conversations relating to Abuses of Governmental Power. The total listening time is approximately 205 hours, three of which were opened in May 1993, 201 hours released in November 1996, and 54 minutes in February 1999. The individual segments range from a few seconds to over an hour in length. Using the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act of 1974, the Negotiated Agreement of 1979, and other guidelines, Nixon Presidential Materials Staff (NLNP) archivists identified these segments as relating to abuses of governmental power. There are no transcripts for these tape segments. NLNP archivists have prepared Tape Survey Logs as listening aids. For each tape segment, the tape log includes the date, time and location, names of participants, and an outline of the content of the conversation. A detailed finding aid is also available for this group of tapes.

Prisoner of War/Missing in Action (POW-MIA) Segments

NARA released three conversation segments totaling approximately 41 minutes of listening time on September 29, 1997 in response to a special request from representatives of the POW-MIA families and with the agreement of the Nixon Estate. Two of the conversations took place on March 22, 1973 and one was recorded on April 11, 1973. There are transcripts for all three of these segments.

Cabinet Room Conversations- (February 16, 1971-July 18, 1973)

On October 16, 1997, NLNP released the first group of tapes to be processed and made available to the public in accordance with the April 1996 Tapes Settlement Agreement. The approximately 436 conversations which take place in the Cabinet Room currently total about 154 hours. The NLNP staff is systematically declassifying these conversations under Executive Order 12958. Portions of nine of the conversations have been transcribed in response to Court order for information regarding automobile safety, demonstrations, and Wounded Knee. NLNP has created a Tape Subject Log to accompany the conversations. In addition, NLNP has compiled four indexes--conversation, name, geographical, and acronym--to assist researchers in identifying relevant conversations.

First Chronological Installment (February-July 1971)

On October 5, 1999, NLNP released the third group of tapes to be processed and made available to the public in accordance with the 1996 Tapes Settlement Agreement. There are approximately 3,600 conversations totaling 443 hours of listening time. Although portions of some conversations have been transcribed in response to various court orders (involving the May Day demonstrations, auto safety, and the purchase of helium), most conversations do not have transcripts. NLNP has created a detailed tape subject log to accompany each tape, indicating the date, inclusive times, the location of the recording, the names of participants, and a detailed outline of the content of the conversation. In addition, NLNP has compiled five indexes--a conversation list, a name list, a geographical list, acronym list, and a transcript list--to assist researchers to identify relevant conversations.

Paper to paper copies of most documents can be made on self-service copiers at a cost of 10¢ per page. Microfilm to paper copies and digital copies of pages from small bound volumes are 25¢ per image. Before copying any textual records researchers must show a staff member the original material they wish to duplicate. Self-service Polaroid cameras are available in the Still Picture Research Room that make color or black and white photographic prints for $8.60.

Researchers may copy certain audiovisual records using their own equipment or may rent the use of a dubbing station available in the research room. For details use Fax-on-Demand or call the general reference number to obtain the Motion Picture, Sound, and Video Research Room orientation handout. Some audiovisual records may not be copied such as the Nixon White House tapes and copyrighted newsreels.

On October 16, 1997, NLNP released the first group of tapes to be processed and made available to the public in accordance with the April 1996 Tapes Settlement Agreement. The approximately 436 conversations which take place in the Cabinet Room currently total about 154 hours. The NLNP staff is systematically declassifying these conversations under Executive Order 12958. Portions of nine of the conversations have been transcribed in response to Court order for information regarding automobile safety, demonstrations, and Wounded Knee. NLNP has created a Tape Subject Log to accompany the conversations. In addition, NLNP has compiled four indexes--conversation, name, geographical, and acronym--to assist researchers in identifying relevant conversations.

First Chronological Installment (February-July 1971)

On October 5, 1999, NLNP released the third group of tapes to be processed and made available to the public in accordance with the 1996 Tapes Settlement Agreement. There are approximately 3,600 conversations totaling 443 hours of listening time. Although portions of some conversations have been transcribed in response to various court orders (involving the May Day demonstrations, auto safety, and the purchase of helium), most conversations do not have transcripts. NLNP has created a detailed tape subject log to accompany each tape, indicating the date, inclusive times, the location of the recording, the names of participants, and a detailed outline of the content of the conversation. In addition, NLNP has compiled five indexes--a conversation list, a name list, a geographical list, acronym list, and a transcript list--to assist researchers to identify relevant conversations.

Materials of Peter M. Flanigan
Among Nixon Presidential Materials, 1969-74

The Presidential historical materials of Peter M. Flanigan, Assistant to the President and Assistant to the President for International Economic Affairs, are in custody of the National Archives and Records Administration under the provision of Title I of the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-526, 88 Stat. 1695) and implementing regulations. In accordance with the act and regulations, archivists reviewed the file group to identify personal and private materials as well as nonhistorical items. These materials have been returned to Flanigan.

Materials covered by the act have been archivally processed and are described in this register. Items which are security classified or otherwise restricted under the act and regulations have been removed and placed in a closed file. A Document Withdrawal Records (GSA Form 7279 or NA Form 1421) with a description of each restricted document has been inserted at the beginning of each folder from which materials have been removed. A Document Control Record marks the original position of the withdrawn item. Employees of the National Archives will review periodically the unclassified portions of closed material for the purpose of opening those which no longer require restriction. Certain classified documents may be declassified under authority of Executive Order 12356 in response to a Mandatory Review Request (NA Form 1420) submitted by the researcher.

Scope and Content Note

Peter Flanigan's association with Richard M. Nixon began the year preceding the 1960 Presidential campaign. In the months prior to the Republican National Convention, he organized a New Yorkers for Nixon group, and during the campaign he directed the nationwide Volunteers for Nixon-Lodge organizations. Following Nixon's unsuccessful bid for the Presidency in 1960 and his subsequent move to New York City in 1963, Flanigan joined a coterie of Nixon supporters to devise a strategy for the former Vice President's return to elective office. During the 1968 Presidential campaign Flanigan was Nixon's deputy campaign manager.

Nixon's victory in 1968 provided Flanigan an opportunity to enhance his power and influence within the incoming Nixon administration. During the transition period and for several months after the inauguration, he served as an unpaid consultant, advising on the recruitment of personnel for the new administration. By mid-April 1969, Flanigan formally joined the White House Staff as Assistant to the President. At a press conference to introduce him to the White House press corps, White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler disclosed to the assembled reporters that Flanigan's duties would center primarily on economic, commercial, and financial areas. He also announced that Flanigan would assume those duties relating to regulatory agencies and other domestic matters that had been previously assigned to Robert Ellsworth, who had been named Ambassador to NATO. As Flanigan's areas of responsibility gradually broadened to include international economic matters, he was appointed, in January 1972, as Assistant to the President for International Economic Affairs. A month later, President Nixon named him Executive Director of the Council on International Economic Policy (CIEP).

Flanigan resigned his White House post on June 24, 1974, and left the administration in early July, returning to the New York investment firm of Dillon, Read & Co., Inc.

The materials of Peter Flanigan in the White House Special Files date from the period 1969-74. They fall into three series: Subject Files, Ambassador Files, and Special Files. The Subject Files comprise the bulk of the file group and document the entire range of Flanigan's responsibilities as Assistant to the President. The Ambassador Files relate to Flanigan's role in the selection process of individuals for non-career diplomatic posts. The Special Files are, for the most part, an appendage to the Ambassador Files and frequently include material duplicated in this latter file series. Some materials in this series also relate to economic subjects, such as economic problems in New Hampshire and the financial and regulatory difficulties of the airline industry. With regard to the New Hampshire situation, there is considerable correspondence between Flanigan and the State's First District Congressman Louis C. Wyman.

The Staff Member and Office Files of the White House Central Files contain an additional 44 cubic feet of Flanigan material, of which 4 cubic feet are attributed to him in his capacity as CIEP Executive Director. The Nixon Presidential Materials Project possesses a tape recording and transcript of an exit interview with Flanigan that was conducted by personnel of the Office of Presidential Paper and Archives on July 9, 1974.

OFFICE OF TELECOMMUNICATIONS POLICY

These Presidential historical materials are in the custody of the National Archives and Records Administration under the provisions of Title I of the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act of 1974 (44 U.S.C. 2111 note), and implementing regulations. In accordance with the act and regulations, archivists reviewed the file group to identify private or personal as well as non-historical items. Such items, if found, have been withdrawn for return to the individual with primary proprietary or commemorative interest in them.

Materials covered by this act have been archivally processed and are described in this finding aid. Items that are security classified or otherwise restricted under the act and regulations have been removed and placed in a closed file. A Document Withdrawal Record (NA Form 1421) has been placed in the front of each folder describing each withdrawn item. Employees of the National Archives will review periodically the unclassified portions of closed materials for the purpose of opening those which no longer require restrictions. Classified documents may be reviewed for declassification under authority of Executive Order 12356 in response to Mandatory Review Request (NA Form 14020) submitted by the researcher.

OFFICE OF TELECOMMUNICATIONS POLICY

In September 1970, President Nixon established the Office of Telecommunications Policy (OTP) by Executive Order 11556 to take over the former Office of Telecommunications Management. The objective was to oversee the federal government's use of long distance communications. The President wanted the OTP to "serve as his principal advisor, help formulate policies, and act as a more effective partner in discussions of communications policy with both Congress and the FCC."

Principal correspondents include President Nixon, Robert Finch, Counsel to the President, Peter Flanigan, Political/Economic Advisor, Dr. Glen Wegner, Deputy Counselor, and OTP Director Clay T. Whitehead.

The files reflect the President's concerns with communications and technology. Subjects that are covered in this collection are Cable TV, Cable-Broadcast Interaction, National Communications System, spectrum management process, and research and analyses.

The terms Executive and General precede each file designation. The Executive file category contains correspondence of the President, White House Staff, and the OTP. The General file category contains correspondence of the general public, members of Congress, and White House Staff. The files subdivided /A indicate files relating to career appointments. The FG 6-14 category consists of drafts, letters, memoranda, published reports, and working papers.

WHITE HOUSE CENTRAL FILES

SUBJECT FILES

FG 118 - FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

The file FG 118 contains correspondence and memoranda regarding the Federal Communications Commission. The Commission was created by the Communications Act of 1934 (48 Stat. 1064), and administers the act, as amended. The Commission is made up of seven Commissioners appointed by the President for seven-year terms with one designated as Chairman.

The Federal Communications Commission was established, in the words of the 1934 act, "for the purpose of regulating interstate and foreign commerce in communication by wire and radio so as to make available, so far as possible, to all people of the United States a rapid, efficient, nationwide, and worldwide wire and radio communication service with adequate facilities at reasonable charges."

Principal correspondents include the President, Clay Whitehead, Director of the Office of Telecommunications, Peter Flanigan, Assistant to the President, Herb Klein, Director of Communications for the Executive Branch, and Dean Burch, Chairman of the Commissioners of the Federal Communications Commission from 1969 to March, 1974.

The Executive folders of FG 118 contain chiefly White House internal memoranda and correspondence with the Federal Communications Commission regarding issues under the jurisdiction of the FCC. There include appointments to the Federal Communications Commission, Cable television, and satellite communication. The General folders contain letters from the general public which deal with subjects similar to those found in the Executive folders: recommendations for appointments to the Federal Communications Commission, comments on decisions of the FCC, and requests for White House intervention in cases before the FCC.

On the folders, the terms Executive and General are used in the titles to indicate separation of documents according to source and handling. "Executive" items include communication among national, foreign, and state and local governments and their agencies, members of Congress, and selected prominent correspondents. "General" designates communications between Government officials and private citizens, institutions, and private interest groups. Where "/A" follows a numeric file designation, it indicates files relating to appointments, nominations, and resignations within that organization.

Some of the files related to FG 118 include:

This category contains letters and memoranda relating to the Federal Communications Commission. Documents include transmittal letters for monthly reports of activities of the FCC (the primary file designation for the reports is not generally FG 118, however), meetings between the Chairman of the FCC and the President, and memoranda regarding appointments to vacancies on the Commission.

FG 118/A

This sub-category contains Executive Orders, transmittal letters, and other documents relating to the appointments, nominations, and resignations within the Federal Communications Commission.

NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

The National Security Council (NSC) was established by the National Security Act of July, 1947 (PL 235-61 Stat. 496; U.S.C. 402). The National Security Act formalized the coordination of foreign and defense policy among federal agencies. This legislation also provided for the creation of the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Resources Board, a National Military Establishment and a Secretary of Defense.

The NSC was created by President Truman to assist and advise the President on domestic, foreign and military policies relating to national security. The staff of the NSC, as stated in the National Security Act of 1947, consisted of the following seven permanent members: the President, who served as chairman, the Secretaries of State, Defense, Army, Navy, Air Force, and the Chairman of the National Security Resources Board. The Director of the Central Intelligence Agency served as a resident advisor. The President also had the authority to designate Secretaries from other executive agencies to attend meetings as appropriate.

In 1949, the National Security Act Amendments (63 Stat. 579; 50 U.S.C. 401 et seq.) were passed, reorganizing the structure of the NSC and placing it within the Executive Office of the President. The three service secretaries were eliminated as members of the Council and the Vice President and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff were added as permanent members. The NSC staff was divided into three groups: the Executive Secretary and his staff, personnel on detail and Consultants to the Executive Secretary. Standing committees were created to deal with sensitive issues. Further changes were made to the NSC by President Truman in 1950 and 1951 when he directed the head of the Office of Defense Mobilization to attend NSC meetings and then made him a member of the senior staff. Both the personnel and Consultants were later eliminated in favor of a Senior Staff.

The structure and function of the NSC continued to change with each administration. The needs and desires of the President and his relationships with his advisors and department heads all had an affect on the role of the NSC in policy and decision-making. Throughout his administration President Truman relied on advice directly from his Secretaries of State and Defense and only made regular use of the NSC during the Korean War. President Eisenhower, on the other hand, met with the NSC regularly and created a structured system of policy review. Presidents Kennedy and Johnson scaled back the size and responsibility of the NSC. Instead they relied on their National Security Advisor and his staff, inter-agency working groups and heads of agencies.

During the Nixon Administration, the members of the NSC included the President, Vice President, Secretary of State, Secretary of Defense, and the Director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, who was removed in 1973. President Nixon maintained a close relationship with his National Security Advisor, Henry Kissinger. Unlike his predecessors, he relied heavily on both his National Security Advisor and the NSC for guidance on foreign policy decisions. Kissinger increased the size of the NSC staff from 12 to 34. He set NSC agendas, set up inter-departmental working groups to prepare for NSC directives, created the NSC Review Group and issued National Security Study Memoranda (NSSM) and National Security Decision Memoranda (NSDM) which set forth needs for inter-agency policy papers. Kissinger also set up and chaired six NSC related committees: the Senior Review Group, the Washington Special Actions Group, the Verification Panel, the 40 Committee, the Intelligence Committee and the Defense Program Review Committee. Under Kissinger's direction, the NSC also took over the responsibility of clearing policy cables to overseas posts. He regularly participated in discussions with foreign state visitors and conducted important business directly from his office. The White House became the foreign policy-maker, eliminating the Department of State's participation. In September 1973, Henry Kissinger was appointed Secretary of State, replacing William Rogers. Kissinger thus became the first and only individual to serve simultaneously as National Security Advisor and Secretary of State.
